Globally there is risk in all areas of business - Governmental to Energy (Oil & Gas) to Insurance, and other Financial industries. Many of these organisations, international companies and agencies choose to ignore the risk factors in their business or operational policies, and the potential damage it can cause to operations. Risk should never be ignored and cannot be eliminated, but it can be assessed and minimised, or even eradicated efficiently and effectively by implementing correct and effective policies and procedures.

The Risk Management team for COR (Certified Oilfield Rentals) understand and consider what effects businesses will encounter in their country of operation, from the political, to Energy and business environments. By identifying previous areas of risk or existing situations and vulnerabilities, along with political and business rivalries in the country of operations, our Risk Management services enhances business performance by conducting detailed and focused risk assessments, identifying new or existing problems that allow us to minimising risk realistically.

It goes without saying that operating in the oil and gas industry on a global scale comes with a few difficulties, in fact any global company with locations in hostile or semi-hostile locations and environments need to be aware of the risks involved. The safety of personnel, facilities and property is of paramount importance to us, so taking every precaution to ensure a safe working practice in potentially volatile areas of the world, is something we pay particular attention to.

The COR Risk Management team have extensive backgrounds in every field of Risk Management, serving side by side with the armed forces and defense organizations for over two decades. They pay attention to every detail in evaluating all the risks associated with any location. This process takes into account the immediate environment, political stability of the country, health risks, crime, resources, environmental dangers, security of the facilities etc, taking every step necessary to make the area safe for a company to establish itself. Our services don't end there, as we commit 100% to constantly evaluating and monitoring these locations on a daily basis.

COR Risk Management personnel oversee and implement systems that include a comprehensive contingency plan, electronic and physical security measures, Health and Safety procedures, and if necessary training that includes Medical & awareness training.

The Risk Management role is a continuous one, constantly reviewing and staying ahead of any potential risks that may cause problems in any area of the world, analyzing and making recommendations and implementing policies and procedures specifically designed to match specific requirements through a range of technical capabilities.
